

Message from Dr. Mary Ann Dewan, County Superintendent of Schools

Dear Santa Clara County Community,

Libraries play a valuable role in our communities. They provide equitable access to opportunities for learning and support. Join me in sharing gratitude for libraries during National Library Week. From April 7-13, the greater community celebrates the resources provided by libraries and the incredible people who work diligently to make learning accessible across the country.

Mary Ann Dewan, Ph.D.
County Superintendent of Schools

The Santa Clara County Library District provides access to free books for any age, in either print or digital format. To learn more about the Santa Clara County Library District, visit: <https://scclid.org/>

Adults looking to sharpen their reading skills can do so through the Santa Clara County Library District's Reading Program. To learn more, visit: <https://scclid.org/reading-program/>. The 1,000 Books Before 6 initiative is designed to help families engage in literacy learning with their children before they turn six years old by reading 1,000 books together. To learn more about this program, visit: <https://scclid.org/1000-books-before-6/>

In community,

Mary Ann Dewan, Ph.D.
County Superintendent of Schools
