College of Arts and Humanities

September 15th is the first of the series featuring a panel of art education scholars from across the nation that "...promote art education research and practices on Asian art, culture(s), artists, and philosophies within global and cross-cultural perspectives."

Following the panel, there will be time with TCAP leaders to share comments, ideas, and make connections to the California Arts Education Framework and Visual Arts Standards.

The webinars are free, but you must pre-register.
