

Leading In A Time Of Crisis

By: Angela Jaffari

Champions for Leadership
June 21, 2011

Planning The Change

- Organizational Culture
- Teamwork
- Shared Vision
- Service Improvements
- Students Achievement Gap

Some Major Accomplishments

- SJ2020 Initiative
- Preschool Planning
- Services to Districts
- Technology Programs
& Digital Designs
- CFL Training Program

Key Learnings

Self-Management: Self- management is important to perform well in most professional jobs as well as leading a fulfilling life in general.

Principles: Fairness, integrity, and self awareness are the principals of Self-management and personal leadership.

Strength: Initiating change requires hard work and endless efforts and the ups and downs of the innovation are unavoidable.

Morale: Promoting the value and development of employees in any firm Increases the organizational health and morale.

Ethics: Leadership is not about style or emulating another leader. It is about Responsibility and stewardship. A true leader appeals to not only people's minds, but to their hearts – as leaders demonstrate through their vision and values.

Celebrating Achievement

This is a chance for all of us to experience the beauty of the transformation of our organization into:

- A voice on critical education issues,
- A model of excellence, and
- An organization that supports employee success.

