Monica Dvorsky & Evan Lloyd
TRAC Website

Champions for Leadership
June 12, 2012

Goals

Professional development goals (Monica)

* I joined CFL to learn to become a servant leader and to improve my knowledge and awareness of SCCOE's leadership philosophy.
* My hope was to enhance my performance in my current position and to enhance my leadership skills for future advancement.

Professional development goals (Evan)

* CFL was an actionable item from my last review.
* What I hoped to take away from the program was a better understanding of the COE's Management culture and goals.

Goals

Project goals

* Our project was to create a website for the Technology Resource Advisory Committee (TRAC) to let the SCCOE community know who TRAC is and that we exist to serve their needs.

* The purpose of the website is to serve as a resource for obtaining advice, recommendations, and creative solutions for the technology needs of the SCCOE.

* Our goal is to provide a place where staff can request assistance with technology projects, gain access to current hardware standards, or get help choosing the correct technology to meet their needs since what is right for many customers

* We also aim to provide project tracking and status updates to ensure an open and transparent process used to assess and select technology.

* Ensure customer service, feedback opportunities, and guaranteed response to submissions.

Accomplishments/Successes

Welcome to the TRAC website

Santa Clara County Office of Education

Key Learnings

Have clear goals; "If you don't know where you're going any road will get you there." the Cheshire Cat said to Alice in Wonderland. Leadership is about providing that direction.

My favorite activity was the examination of our own personality types and how they interact with other types, then guess our bosses type…

We did not start out with our final project. We both were working on other projects when the need for this standards idea came out of a tech support meeting. Our biggest challenge has been and continues to be, define what has never been defined here at the COE; A technology standard that could be documented. That task continues to evolve as we move forward.

Santa Clara County Office of Education