Message from Dr. Mary Ann Dewan, County Superintendent of Schools

Dear Santa Clara County Community,

Research shows the benefits of spending time outdoors, including improved academic performance, enhanced physical and mental well-being, and increased creativity for both youth and adults.

Santa Clara County is fortunate to have many opportunities for outdoor exploration and learning. From hiking trails in our beautiful parks to nature education programs, there are activities suitable for all ages and interests.

Time spent in parks can contribute to attention restoration, reduce symptoms of attention deficit disorders, improve cognitive function, and reduce problem behaviors in young children.

Here are a few local resources to help you plan enriching outdoor experiences:

- Santa Clara County Parks: Explore the various parks and trails available for hiking, birdwatching, and nature study. Visit Santa Clara County Parks for more information.
- Environmental Education Programs: Discover educational programs offered by organizations like Environmental Volunteers and Walden West that focus on hands-on learning in natural settings.
- Community Gardens and Farms: Engage in gardening activities and farm visits to learn about sustainable agriculture and healthy eating habits at community gardens like the Santa Clara Community Garden or the Morgan Hill Community Garden or a community garden in your city.

Connecting with nature fosters an appreciation for the environment and promotes lifelong learning.

In community,

Mary Ann Dewan, Ph.D.
